Use of Causative Verb Make in Present Indefinite Tense

Structure: Subject + Causative Verb "Make" + Agent + Verb 1st form + Object +.

1. I make my sister make tea.

2. He makes Akram clean the room.

3. Does Ali make Akram wash the cloths?

4. I do not make you drive a car.

Use of Causative Verb Make in Present Continuous Tense

Structure: Subject +Helping verb(is/are/am) + Causative Verb "Making" + Agent + Verb 1st form + Object +.

1. The father is making his son wash the car.

2. She is not making us iron the clothes.

3. Are you making your servant write a letter?

Use of Causative Verb Make in Present Perfect Tense

Structure: Subject +Helping verb (has/have) + Causative Verb "made" + Agent + Verb 1st form + Object +.

1. He has made his son wash the car.

2. She has not made us iron the clothes.

3. Have you made Shabana cook food?

Use of Causative Verb Make in Present Perfect Continuous

Structure: Subject +Helping verb (has/have + been) + Causative Verb "making" + Agent + Verb 1st form + Object + Since/For + .

1. Father has been making his son wash the car since morning.

2. She has not been making us cook food since 2'clock.

Use of Causative Verb Make in Past Indefinite Tense

Structure: Subject + Causative Verb "made" + Agent + Verb 1st form + Object + .

1. We made them cook food.

2. Did you make him make tea?

3. I did not make them wash the clothes.

Use of Causative Verb Make in Past Continuous Tense

Structure: Subject +Helping verb(was/were) + Causative Verb "Making" + Agent + Verb 1st form + Object +.

1. Father was making Ali wash the car.

2. She was not making us iron the clothes.

3. Were you making your servant write a letter?

Use of Causative Verb Make in Past Perfect Tense

Structure: Subject +Helping verb (had) + Causative Verb "made" + Agent + Verb 1st form + Object +.

1. I had made my son paint the room.

2. I had not made my servant write a letter.

3. Had she made Akram cook food?

Use of Causative Verb Make in Past Perfect Continuous

Structure: Subject +Helping verb (had+ been) + Causative Verb "making" + Agent + Verb 1st form + Object + Since/For + .

1. We had been making them wash the clothes since morning.

2. I had not been making you write a letter for two hours.

3. Had she been making him cook food since evening.

Use of Causative Verb Make in Future Indefinite Tense

Structure: Subject + helping verb (will/shall) + Causative Verb "Make" + Agent + Verb 1st form + Object +.

1. I will make her clean the room.

2. She will not make Akram wash the dishes.

3. Will you make your son paint the room?

Use of Causative Verb Make in Future Continuous Tense

Structure: Subject +Helping verb(will be/ shall be) + Causative Verb "Making" + Agent + Verb 1st form + Object +.

1. She will be making akram clean the room.

2. I will not be making you wash the dishes.

3. Will your father be making you polish shoes?

Use of Causative Verb Make in Future Perfect Tense

Structure: Subject +Helping verb (will have/shall have) + Causative Verb "made" + Agent + Verb 1st form + Object +.

1. I will have made you clean the room.

2. She will not have made Akram wash the dishes.

3. Will Akram have made her polish shoes?

Use of Causative Verb Make in Future Perfect Continuous

Structure: Subject +Helping verb (will have/ shall have+ been) + Causative Verb "making" + Agent + Verb 1st form + Object + Since/For +

1. I will have been making her cook food for 2 hours.

2. He will not have been making her child pain the room since morning.

3. Will Akram have been making you polish shoes since yesterday?